9:00 – 9:50 a.m. COVID-19 Aftermath: Stimulus Packages & Economic Consequences

Unlike anything we've seen in modern history, the COVID-19 global pandemic impacted every aspect of our lives. Federal stimulus support provided during the last year was intended to boost the economy as states closed nonessential businesses, jobs were lost, and businesses were forced to rethink their day-to-day operations. Have the stimulus packages delivered on their promise? What are the long-term impacts of those stimulus funds? How has business and industry benefited and been harmed? In this session, we'll learn about the economic impacts and consequences of the COVID-19 pandemic on business.

Christopher Russo, Post Graduate Research Fellow - Mercatus Center at George Mason University

10:00 – 10:50 a.m. Supply Chain Resiliency & National Security Implications for Business

Business of all sizes and industries need a reliable supply chain that provides certainty in order to meet their customer demand. When supply chains are threatened – by a global pandemic or foreign adversaries – the impact can be detrimental to business growth and profitability. Our panel of experts from industry and the national security community will provide their perspective on what needs to be done to ensure certainty of supply chains, where national security comes into play, as well as forecasting the long-term impact the recent global pandemic has left on business and suppliers.

John Drake, Vice President, Supply Chain Policy - U.S. Chamber of Commerce

Anthony "Lazer" Lazarski, Principal – Cornerstone Government Affairs

11:00– 11:50 a.m. Political Update: 2020 Election Outcomes

The 2020 election cycle was plagued with a pandemic and deeply divided political views on how it should have been handled, making it a defining point of the election. As we now know, the White House and U.S. Senate shifted party control to the Democrats. This panel will provide their analysis on the election and forecast how 2020 will shape the midterms and beyond.

Paul DiNino, President – DiNino Associates

Matt Moon, Deputy Executive Director – National Republican Senatorial Committee (NRSC)
